

Italian Republic

Rating report

Rating rationale

Core euro area member. Italy benefits from supportive fiscal and monetary policy frameworks under the EU and euro area institutional architecture. The economy's systemic relevance further underpins the high likelihood of support from European institutions under stressed scenarios.

Large, wealthy and diversified economy. Italy's EUR 2.2trn economy is the third largest in the EU and benefits from a wide diversification across sectors and exports, supporting its economic resilience to shocks. Italy is set to receive EUR 194.4bn of Next Generation EU recovery funds (9.2% of average GDP over 2021-26F), which together with associated reforms should support its economic outlook. Italy's economy is demonstrating remarkable resilience, with real GDP standing 6.5% above pre-covid levels in Q2 2025, slightly better than the euro area average (+6.2%).

Strong external position: Italy's record of current account surpluses has turned the country into a net creditor. This position, together with the euro's status as a global reserve currency, shields the country from external risks.

Low private indebtedness: Moderate private debt levels among Italian non-financial corporates and households support the stability of the financial system and reduce the risk of private sector liabilities materialising on the government's balance sheet.

Political stability: Since 2022, Italy's government has shown remarkable stability when compared with the poor track record of previous short-lived cabinets. The possible revision of the electoral law could have important implications for policy continuity beyond the electoral cycle, with the next scheduled general elections to be held no later than fall 2027.

Rating challenges: i) high government debt and funding needs, which are expected to remain elevated over the long term; ii) weak longer-run economic growth; and iii) an ageing and declining working-age population.
